Install the OS, the programs the administrator wants to crack the password and the password-cracking program. Install each program individually without installing them as a program bundle. Once installed, reboot the computer. Install the OS, the programs the administrator wants to crack the password and the password-cracking program. Install each program as part of the standard OS bundle. Once installed, reboot the computer. Option 2 is a better method because you can use it in the case that any of the programs does not work. However, it is quite possible that the program that installs itself as a standard OS bundle is not one of the programs that you are trying to crack. If so, the best option may be to use option 1.
